

Polysomnography receives accreditation

BY RICHY HUNEYCUTT

The Lenoir Community College Polysomnography Program was recently accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (CAAHEP).

This is the highest educational standard that must be met, according to LCC Polysomnography Program Head Karen Monarchy Rowe.

According to the Board of Registered Polysomnographic Technologists (BRPT), the worldwide and only credentialing board for polysomnography, by July 1, 2012, in order to be eligible for the examination all applicants must complete a comprehensive training program accredited by CAAHEP under the CoAPSG (Committee on Accreditation of Polysomnography), or an acceptable add-on polysomnography program under CAAHEP.

Receiving the "RPSGT" credential is the highest standard for polysomnography. No other credential is acceptable stating that the "gold standard" has been met.

The program received word in March of its accreditation.

The program prepares students, working in conjunction with a physician, to perform and interpret sleep studies and to provide comprehensive clinical evaluations that are required for the diagnosis of sleep related disorders.

The program currently accepts 10 new students per year in the Fall semester. It is a five-semester, two-year program leading to an associate in applied science degree in Polysomnography.

For more information on the program, contact Rowe at 527-6223, ext. 347.

President's Corner

It's difficult to believe that graduation is right around the corner. This has been a record-breaking year for LCC. We concluded our 50th anniversary celebration, experienced record enrollment for both semesters, increased the number of endowed scholarships, and increased the number of distance education courses offered.

Graduation marks a new beginning. Graduates, you have been preparing for this moment since the minute you enrolled at LCC. It is a time of excitement. There are new opportunities and new challenges ahead. As you leave LCC, stay committed to being a lifelong learner. Know that LCC stands ready to serve your future academic needs.

While some of you are leaving, others are just beginning. We are excited to see the new faces that will be assuming the leadership roles of those who are leaving.

Even though our official 50th anniversary celebration has ended, we are always celebrating academic excellence. You are a part of our history and you are helping us to write the next chapters of our future. LCC has made a difference in so many lives, and we are all proud to be a part of so many new beginnings.

Your family and friends are proud of you, but remember that your instructors, the board of trustees, the administration and staff are also proud of your accomplishments. You should celebrate and know that there is much more to come in your life. I know there are challenges, but you have already taken the first steps to meet those challenges by enrolling at LCC.

We are looking forward to another exciting year. Enjoy the summer and know that my door is always open.

Dr. Brantley Briley
LCC President

Basic Skills Program encourages reading

BY RANDI TAYLOR

President Obama has strongly encouraged all Americans to complete at least one year of post-secondary school or career training in order to be qualified for the nations' jobs. This is a difficult goal to achieve for those adults in the United States who lack basic skills in reading, writing, and math.

According to David Harvey of the Huffington Post, "When President Obama presented his call to action, undoubtedly students everywhere were given new hope that they could reach that goal themselves. However, at the same time, for the one in seven who lack these skills, to even apply for college or technical training is disappointing. This is not a new situation resulting from the economic downturn but a crisis that has been silently brewing in the American workforce for nearly a decade... Thirty-two million adults are now considered to have low literacy skills."

In February of 2008, a beginning reading class began at the Sampson Learning Center of Lenoir Community College. The instructor, India Johnson, nurtured a small group of individuals who had the desire to learn to read. From sight words to complete sentences and beyond, these students progressed rapidly. A nonences and wanted so much to share.

Their success led to "word of mouth" advertisement for the adult literacy classes offered in Lenoir County and new classes have been created to allow other inter-reader progressed 1.5 grade levels in six months; another student completed an entire level, moving from beginning to intermediate. These were adult students who had worked all their lives, surviving and succeeding in spite of their inability to read. They were full of life experienced students to accomplish their beginning literacy goals. One day class on site at LCC, taught by Lib Baker, and one night class, taught by Susan McCollam, enables the reading students to learn at convenient times. Different approaches to reading instruction and Reading Horizons software, along with a teacher-made curriculum and workbooks, provide the necessary essentials for learning.

It is the goal of these students to enter adult education classes where they achieve an adult high school diploma or a GED diploma. Then, they can meet the President's challenge of one year or more of post-secondary or career training! Persistence is the key to achievement, and the beginning literacy students have plenty!

If you are reading this article, thank a teacher, a relative, a motivator, who helped you to enter the world of literacy. If you know someone who wants to learn the joy of reading in a relaxed, non-threatening atmosphere, send them to Judy Hill or Randi Taylor, Office Suite 166, Bullock Building.

April Students of the Month

Melissa Casper and Amy Spear, both of Trenton, were selected as Lenoir Community College's April Students of the Month. The two were recently recognized at the college's awards ceremony and they are recognized by the Lenoir/Greene United Way.

Casper is enrolled in the Business Administration program at LCC and holds a 4.0 grade point average. She is a member of Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society and works part time as a work-study student in the LCC Cooperative Education/Job Placement Office and has worked in the Business Office.

Spear is enrolled in the Criminal Justice program at LCC and holds a 3.7 grade point average. She is secretary to the LCC Student Government Association and works with community projects with the SGA. She is also involved in collecting items to send to troops in Iraq.

PN class attends state convention

BY STEPHANIE MAYNARD

The Lenoir Community College Practical Nursing class attended the NCLPNA Convention in Raleigh recently. LCC was one of three schools that participated in the convention.

The students were welcomed by Patricia Beverage, LPN, president of the NCLPNA. She introduced past presidents, current presidents of the different areas in North Carolina. She also introduced the members of the North Carolina Board of Nursing.

LCC and the two other schools received plaques for 100 percent membership. Beverage then introduced Julie George, RN, BSN, executive director of the North Carolina Board of Nursing. George spoke about the regulations of the North Carolina Board of Nursing. She also spoke about the LPN Scope of Practice and the Nursing Practice Act of North Carolina.

After George spoke, Beverage introduced Donna Mooney, RN, BSN, Manager, Discipline of the North Carolina Board of Nursing. Mooney spoke about generational issues and the discipline process. She spoke about the different generations working together within the nursing field today—the traditionalist, the baby boomer, the Generation X, and the millennium.

She spoke about the work ethics of each generation and how we work with each other in the field. She also spoke about the discipline process of each generation and gave examples of disciplinary actions given to nurses from each generation.

Triathlete races at Ironman Florida to raise funds for scholarship

FROM STAFF REPORTS

When Goldsboro resident and triathlete Robert E. Van Meir steps up to the starting line at Ironman Florida, (2.4 mile swim, 112 mile bike, 26.2 mile run) he won't be competing just for himself. He'll also be raising funds for the Sharon McPhail Memorial Scholarship.

Van Meir is raising money through the Janus Charity Challenge, an innovative program designed and sponsored by the investment management firm, Janus. The program helps motivate Ironman athletes to use their race experience to raise money for charity. But unlike most other race fundraising programs, there is no pre-determined beneficiary. Instead, Janus Charity Challenge participants can choose their favorite nonprofit organization(s) as their beneficiary. Since the program's inception in 2001, triathletes have raised more than $26 million for hundreds of charities throughout the United States. Janus also makes additional contributions to the beneficiaries of the top fundraisers at each of the full-distance U.S. Ironman races.

"Through their generosity and commitment, Janus Charity Challenge athletes are making the most of a great fundraising opportunity," said Casey Cortese, director of Janus corporate sponsorships. "These triathletes are taking their race to a higher level by providing much-needed support for nonprofit organizations throughout the country."

Van Meir invites others to join in his effort "to honor a very special life that was cut short by cancer. I am hoping to raise enough money to endow a full two-year scholarship at Lenoir Community College in Sharon's name. Ms. McPhail was one class short of completing her two-year degree in Human Service Technology. I hope to ensure that her name and her spirit can live on in this very special way."
